PathPoint Consulting to Develop a 360 degree feedback program and executive coaching to The University of Massachusetts Medical School

NORFOLK, Massachusetts – (November 1, 2005) – PathPoint Consulting, an organizational development and human resources consulting firm, announced that The University of Massachusetts Medical Schools Commonwealth Medicine division has selected PathPoint to design and deliver 360 degree feedback to the executive team and serve in an executive coaching capacity.

In this assignment, Commonwealth Medicine will use PathPoint’s proprietary 360-degree tool – Footprints(R) – and PathPoint will work with program participants to interpret their feedback and build an individual leadership development plan.

“We are excited to continue our work with Commonwealth Medicine,” says Van Latham, Ph.D., Practice Leader at PathPoint. “We have enjoyed working with Commonwealth’s senior team on their business strategy, and we look forward to building leadership capability to drive the strategy.”

About University of Massachusetts’ Commonwealth Medicine

Commonwealth Medicine provides specialized expertise to help public sector healthcare initiatives optimize their efficiency and effectiveness. Developed and operated by the University of Massachusetts Medical School (UMMS), Commonwealth Medicine offers streamlined access to an unparalleled depth and breadth of academic, research, management and clinical resources. The programs have helped Massachusetts and other state and local healthcare agencies to increase the value and quality of healthcare expenditures, and to improve access and delivery of care to at-risk and uninsured populations.
